Resolution

Recommend refusal

CAAC objected to all the kiosk applications and considered that the communications aspect of the proposals was largely camouflage for advertising hoardings, given that internally illuminated signage and advertisements have been resisted historically in the city's conservation areas. They were concerned that the density and uncoordinated siting of the kiosks added to street clutter and that overall the proposals were detrimental to the character of the City Centre and Green Lane/St Peter's Street conservation areas, together with the individual setting of numerous listed and locally listed buildings.

No Conservation Area

Application No. & Location: DER/06/18/00834 - The First Church of Christ Scientist, Friary Street, Derby
Proposal: Display of various signage
Expiry Date: 31/07/2018
Listed Building: GD2

Resolution

No Objection

CAAC accepted that the amended sign positions on 45 degree splays, together with illumination, were justified to identify the building but thought that internal illumination of the hanging signs to the front elevation should be resisted.

They objected to the projecting canopy on the grounds that it was an incongruous feature, detrimental to the character of the listed building.
